Transport for the East Midlands

Transport for the East Midlands (TfEM) has offered a cautious welcome to the Government's Rail White Paper (Williams-Shapps Rail Plan) published this week, but local political leaders want assurances that promised investment will still be delivered.

Sir Peter Soulsby, Chair of TfEM and City Mayor of Leicester said:

"The establishment of a new arms-length body 'Great British Railways' should ensure that the management of track and train is better co-ordinated and improve the running of the railway. But it will be important that these new arrangements are responsive to the needs of local communities and businesses in the East Midlands. We must also ensure that the improvements to the Region's services and rolling stock previously promised by Government are delivered in full. The multi-year Collaboration Agreement TfEM signed by Ministers in September 2020 gives councils a voice in the management of our rail services to provide local accountability, and we look forward to working with GBR to deliver a better railway for the East Midlands.

Cllr Richard Davies, Vice Chair of TfEM and Transport Lead for Lincolnshire County Council said:

"This week EMR introduced the first phase of a promised program of rail improvements in the East Midlands, including new inter-city and regional services, and the first electric trains serving Corby. If we are to 'build back better' from Covid and support our local communities and businesses, we must continue to invest in our railway. Our rural and coastal areas in particular have suffered from poor rail services for many years, and it is vital that all the enhancements set out in the previous Franchise Agreement are delivered under these new arrangements. Modern, flexible and affordable ticketing will also be key, and I am pleased to see that this is part of the Government's thinking.

Great British Railways: Williams-Shapps plan for rail - The Williams-Shapps Plan for Rail was published this week. A new public body, Great British Railways, will run and plan the rail network, own the infrastructure, and receive the fare revenue. It will procure passenger services and set most fares and timetables. This will bring the whole system under single, national leadership with a new brand and identity, built upon the famous double arrow.

Government Review of Local Enterprise Partnerships - The recent HM Budget included an announcement that the Government intends to undertake a review of LEPs, "We [Gov't] will also be working with local businesses on the future role of Local Enterprise Partnerships. We want to ensure local businesses have clear representation and support in their area, in order to drive the recovery. We will work with Local Enterprise Partnerships over the coming months, with a view to announcing more detailed plans ahead of summer recess. This will also include consideration of Local Enterprise Partnership geographies."

Consultation with Local Government colleagues was started at this weeks' Chief Executives meeting, with discussion led by the BEIS/MHCLG Cities and Local Growth Team.

Responses are invited on 4 initial questions but colleagues are welcome to highlight any further points they wish:

1. Which elements of current LEP activity have been most helpful to supporting a) your individual organisations; and b) wider growth in the region over the last ten years?
2. What role do you believe that local/regional business institutions can best play in supporting future growth in the region, particularly given the economic changes as a result of the Covid pandemic?
3. What – if any – changes would you like to see made to the LEP model in future? What would you miss if they weren't there? How would you fill any gap? This could cover functions, geography or governance.

Which areas of current LEP support do you believe most require tailoring for local geographies/needs? Are there any that would be most helpfully standardised nationwide?

Please share your feedback with Pete Holmes, Assistant Director, Cities and Local Growth Unit (pete.holmes@beis.gov.uk). Please note - comments will be anonymised and not attributable to individual Local Authorities.
